

The Wildlife Education Project (WEP) mission is to instill a lifelong respect for wildlife and the environment through education and empowerment of human kind to create change and take responsibility for the protection of all living things.

Respect & Protect All Life

The Wildlife Education Project, Inc. is a Florida non-profit corporation dedicated to providing educational presentations, workshops, events, and products that promote respect for and the welfare of all animals, and the habitats in which they live. WEP accomplishes this through presentations to groups of all kinds and educational materials for the classroom, all based on the real life story of Miss Dot and Trouper the Blind Raccoon.

Trouper the Blind Raccoon is the official Animal Ambassador of the WEP. He is licensed with the State of Florida and the USDA. He receives all regular required vaccinations.

We work to educate and motivate individuals to look beyond themselves to consider others and the environment for the good of all.

The Three Pillars of WEP

Respect All Living Things

WEP's vision is to encourage the Respect of All Living Things. This includes every living and breathing part of our community and our world. We can no longer take for granted the beauty that surrounds us. We must respect it and protect it to preserve our future in it.

Educate Future Leaders

WEP's mission is to Educate our Future Leaders and empower this next generation to take the lead to create change. Using our educational platforms, we believe the future leaders we reach will feel motivated and encouraged to connect with and protect the world they live in.

Protect Our Wildlife

WEP's goal is to advocate for the protection of our most valued natural asset, our world's wildlife and their natural habitat surroundings. We do this through our simple educational messages and engagement in local communities.

You can help us by getting involved TODAY.

Support the WEP

WEP is solely funded by donations. As you are inspired by the work of Miss Dot and Trouper, please consider supporting their mission to reach more people with this timely message. Their story resonates with all kinds of people from young children to adults, the elderly, disabled, and others. Help them continue this important work by sending your tax-deductible donation TODAY.

The Remarkable True Life Story of Trouper the Blind Raccoon

Trouper the Blind Raccoon is a living raccoon who as a baby survived a beating perpetrated by a human. He was left blind, brain damaged, and unable to feed or defend himself after a golfer beat him with a golf club when he was only eight weeks old in 2009.

Luckily for Trouper, animal rehabilitator Dorothy "Dot" Lee rescued and nurtured him through incredible odds of survival, although she usually says, "Trouper rescued me." As their story unfolds, audiences are riveted how she brought Trouper back from death's door many times and the lesson's he taught her along the way. He now lives with her in Southwest Florida under her care.

Their story inspired the founding of the WEP principles in the hopes that educational intervention could make a difference in the protection and preservation of all living things.

Trouper the Blind Raccoon is not a pet. The WEP teaches and supports that no one should keep any wildlife as pets.
